Road-widening has not fixed Iblur Junction's traffic woes; commuters stress on need for signal-free corridor and for people to follow lane discipline

The Iblur Junction, which is used by hundreds of commuters on a daily basis, is one of the major intersections of the two arterial roads – Outer Ring Road (ORR) and Sarjapur Road. The junction faces frequent traffic bottlenecks on the stretch from ORR to Sarjapur Road. In order to address this, road widening had been taken up from Sarjapur Road to Iblur Junction. But when BM did a ground-reality check, this road-widening plan has not quite worked out as brilliantly as was hoped.

As work on the Haralur underpass is put on hold due to the Sarjapur Metro planning phase, more traffic comes to Iblur Junction to take U-Turn from there. The BBMP road infrastructure Department has taken up the road widening at this junction to ensure free left traffic movement towards Agara. The BBMP officials are of the view that road widening at the

Prolonged use of earbuds may lead to hearing loss

City doctors are seeing a surge in young patients complaining of ear pain. When diagnosed, it was found that the reason for the ear pain was due to excessive usage of earbuds. Widespread use of earbuds has become increasingly common, but it is crucial to be mindful of their potential adverse effects on our hearing health. Inserting earbuds into the ear canal can push cerumen, commonly known as ear wax, further inside, leading to a mechanical blockage that can result in hearing loss.

Dr HK Susheen Dutt, a Senior Consultant - ENT Specialist at Fortis Hospital, Bannerghatta Road, said that the impact was significant on IT professionals who often find themselves engaged in numerous meetings throughout the day, subjecting themselves to constant sound stimulation. "This prolonged exposure, coupled with the use of earbuds, can contribute to high-frequency hearing loss, exacerbating the problem. Additionally, using earbuds increases the risk of external ear canal infections, known as otitis externa. To mitigate these risks, it is advisable to opt for soft-fitting headphones that cover the ears, rather than earbuds that fit directly into the ear canal, whenever absolutely necessary," Dr.Dutt said.

Adding to this, Dr Santosh Shivawswamy, a Consultant - ENT & Head and Neck Surgeon at Manipal Hospital, Hebbal, said that using earplugs for extended periods, regardless of whether they are wireless or wired, or incorporate advanced technologies such as noise cancellation, is detrimental to the ears. While immediate symptoms may not be noticeable, prolonged use can lead to complications. "The increased pressure and radiation from the earplugs can result in nerve damage and give rise to ear-related issues like tinnitus, hyperacusis (high sensitivity to environmental noises), dizziness, hearing loss, and noise-induced hearing loss (NIHL). Moreover, prolonged or continuous use of earplugs can lead to increased bacterial buildup in the ear, causing excessive ear wax accumulation, ear pain, and ear infections," he said.

It is always preferable to use over-the-ear headphones or loudspeakers for a hands-free experience. If the use of earplugs is unavoidable, it is advisable to limit usage to no more than 20-30 minutes at a time and alternate ears every 20 minutes. Additionally, maintaining a low to moderate volume and refraining from using earplugs while driving or traveling in noisy environments, such as buses or trains, is essential.

Prolonged use of earphones for eight-10 hours without breaks may lead to ear infections and increase the risk of hearing loss.

Preventive measures
- Keep the volume no higher than 60 per cent.
- Take a 10-minute break every 60 minutes of earphone use.
- Clean ears weekly with cotton buds and spirit if earphone usage cannot be stopped.
- Never share earbuds.
- Use headphones instead of earbuds.
- If earphones are necessary, opt for a high-quality pair.
- Visit a doctor if you experience discomfort or hear a whistling sound.

Speeding vehicle runs over stray dog in National Games Village; activist complains of apathy towards such cases

PIC FOR REPRESENTATION ONLY

Inset: Activist Nevina Kamath sitting beside the dog's carcass at the National Games Village campus on Thursday morning

Dog-killing incidents are becoming rampant across the city with stray dogs being run over by speeding vehicles at various locations. A few years ago, a dog was killed on the BBMP Head Office premises, and Bangalore Mirror had reported about it.

An old dog was killed at a residential apartment complex, National Games Village, on Thursday.

Another shocking image showed an animal activist sitting beside dog carcasses for more than two hours, waiting for the Bruhat Bengaluru Mahanagara Palike (BBMP) Animal Husbandry authorities. Nevina Kamath, the activist taking care of stray dogs at the National Games Village premises, has informed Adugodi police as well. However, initially, the police did nothing more than send a constable at the spot to take pictures of the carcasses.

Kamath says that India has a deep and rich heritage of a close association with animals, which are an inextricable part of our mythology and sacred texts.

"Dogs occupy a pride of place in this system and are a protected species in our country. They need to be given full protection under the law, and any form of cruelty or killing must be punished with a severe penalty. This is the least we can do for a species that helped us immensely on the path of evolution from our time as hunter-gatherers to what we are today. We owe so much to them," she said.

She said the BBMP Animal Husbandry Department sent a vehicle to shift the carcasses.

"I visited Adugodi Police Station, and the police told me to approach Adugodi Traffic Police Station. The traffic police said that the law and order police have to register the case. I told them that I cannot run from one police station to another to lodge a complaint," she added.

Finally, a non-cognisable report (NCR) was registered by the police.

"I am grateful to Inspector Hitendra for his kind understanding and cooperation in this tragic case of willful negligence," she said.

Demanding strong action against those responsible for the killing of the dog at the National Games Village premises, animal activist Arun Prasad suggested the police check CCTV footage to identify the killer. "I want the authorities concerned to act tough against those who ran the vehicle over the dog," he said.

Meanwhile, BBMP Animal Husbandry Joint Director Dr Ravi stated that he sent a vehicle to the spot to shift the carcasses.

"The residents of the locality or the dog feeder have to lodge a complaint with the jurisdictional police regarding the killing of the dog. The local veterinary doctor has to conduct the postmortem," he said.

Volunteers spread awareness on anganwadi centres among marginalised families

INSET: Women and Child Development Deputy Director Dr S Siddharammanna flagged off the mobile van on Thursday at Kunthigrama, near Hebbal; The project ensures access to quality basic education and more

In order to create awareness among marginalised families about the importance of anganwadi centres, Save the Children, a non-governmental organisation, has launched a mobile van as part of the campaign on early childhood care and education. Women and Child Development Deputy Director Dr S Siddharammanna flagged off the mobile van on Thursday at Kunthigrama, near Hebbal.

Save the Children, in collaboration with Samagra Shikshana-Karnataka, Government of Karnataka, and Department of Women and Child Development, is implementing a project to address learning needs and healthy living among children from waste-picking families and neighbouring communities of Bengaluru city. The project, funded by H&M Foundation, is part of the Saamuhika Shakti initiative. In addition to Save the Children, Saamuhika Shakti, a first-of-its-kind project, brings other partner organisations – BBC Media Action, CARE India, Hasiru Dala, Sambhav by LabourNet, Social Alpha, The/Nudge Foundation, and WaterAid India – to take a holistic approach to enable the waste pickers' community in Bengaluru to have greater agency to lead secure and dignified lives.

Save the Children aims to create a conducive learning environment for 9,300 children, most of whom are marginalised and in the three to 18-year-old age group.

The project ensures access to quality basic education with integrated child-friendly sanitation, handwashing, and safe drinking water. A total of 30 slum communities are being covered through this intervention. Over the next 10 days, the mobile van will reach out to 5,000 households to create awareness among 20,000 community members. The implementation strategy will bring in grassroots-level partnership with Anganwadi Centres to enrol children who are between three to six years.

The project wants to address learning needs and healthy living among children from waste-picking families of Bengaluru city

Dr S Siddharammanna, Deputy Director, DWCD, said that he was glad that the mobile van would reach 32 hard-to-reach locations in the city. "They have collaborated with local anganwadi centres. Collective action is the way to reach our ultimate goal," he said.

Karnataka and Tamil Nadu Save the Children senior programme manager NM Chandrasekara said the challenges faced by the waste picker families and their children are profound and manifold. "We at Save the Children have always chosen to be a part of the solution and call on all other stakeholders to come together for a co-commitment and affirmative action. I am very happy to be part of the campaign launch," said Chandrasekara. Appreciating the volunteers, Child Rights Trust director Nagasimha G Rao said such an initiative needs encouragement and support from the state government.

"I want more and more families to admit their children to anganwadi centres. It is a good initiative and benefits children from economically poor families," said Rao.

GM Infinite apartment is converting Sewage Treatment Plant water into potable water

The company Boson Whitewater installs the setup at their own cost and charges the apartment dwellers 60 paise per litre of water used

An apartment in Bengaluru is using 1.5 lakh litres of water for its toilet and cleaning purposes by converting Sewage Treatment Plant (STP) water to potable water. The GM Infinite apartment in Jalahalli West is proving to be a model apartment in Bengaluru. For the past six months, apartment dwellers haven't used fresh water for meeting their janitorial needs. While the apartment utilises 40KLD of water for their needs, the remaining is transported to nearby industries. The transported water is being used for cooling towers, boilers, laundry, chemical processing, and more.

President of the Resident Welfare Association (RWA), Chirag, said, "We installed the setup by Boson Whitewater for converting STP water to potable water nearly six months ago. The water is being used for meeting the requirements of toilet flushing and floor cleaning."

He added that the apartment members saw an advertisement in a newspaper that led to the decision to install it. "It's quite an ordeal to transport the STP water to other places. Instead, we chose this method to convert STP water to potable water," he added. The company Boson Whitewater installs the setup at their own cost and charges the apartment dwellers 60 paise per litre of water used.

Explaining the process, Gowthaman Desingh from Boson Whitewater said, "Residents could not use the STP water, so we make the water potable with our 11-stage process. Excess water is being supplied to nearby industries in Peenya. The first three stages involve filtration through an imported sand medium, followed by X, followed by carbon filters and chemical dosing systems, and micron filtration. After this, the water is taken to a UV disinfection system to ensure the water is free of microbes. The processed water meeting potable standards is being purchased by the residents."

"We installed the setup by Boson Whitewater for converting STP water to potable water nearly six months ago
– Chirag, RWA President

The plant is set up next to the source of the STP water. "The setup does not require too much space. Our system is compact enough to only acquire three car parking spaces. For 100 KLD capacity, we need 16 feet by 14 feet of space," he informed.

Constable kills self

A head constable of the Ashokanagar traffic police station is said to have died by suicide due to illness. Constable Kumar, who was suffering from cancer, killed himself at the police quarters where he lived near Dairy Circle.

Kumar had been diagnosed with cancer for some years. Meanwhile, symptoms of cancer were also detected in the daughter. Kumar, who was deeply disturbed by this, paid for treatment to his daughter along with himself. Kumar's eyes were also donated after his suicide.

Father-son tiff ends in murder

A man is said to have killed his father at 2nd Cross, Gopalpura on Magadi Road on Thursday morning. Gangaraju alias Raju, 55 has been identified as the deceased. Raju was sleeping outside his house when his son, Chetan, bashed a stone on his head and killed him. After learning about the matter, Magadi Road police visited the place and conducted an inspection.

CRIME FILES

"There was a fight between the father and son at half past two in the night. Later, the fight between the two escalated and the son Chetan threw a stone on his father's head. Later, he admitted his father to Victoria Hospital and he died there," said DCP West Division Laxman Nimbaragi.

Manhunt launched for pervert

A manhunt has been launched for a pervert who enters houses on some pretext, picks up lingerie and secretly indulges in "indecent" acts in the city's Vidhana Soudha Layout near Laggere locality.

Several residents have spotted the "psycho" in the act many times. The people have filed a complaint in this regard with the jurisdictional Rajagopalnagar police station and sought immediate action.

Considering the seriousness of the case, police have launched a hunt for the accused.

Police on Thursday told IANS that the man would enter the residences unabashedly at a time when there are no men or houses of single women.

"He seeks access on the pretext of searching for a rented accomodation. Once inside, the accused would spend much time in the washrooms. He would also visit backyards where the clothes are kept for washing or hung to dry. He would target women's clothes, especially inner wear and blouses, and derive some pleasure," police said.

One of the residents had captured a video of the acts of the alleged psycho after he took out a blouse from a laundry basket, ensuring that no one was watching. The video has been submitted to the police.

Taking into account previous cases of serial killers exhibiting similar behaviour in the city, police are working on the case. Apart from the complaint, the police stated that no serious crime has yet been reported regarding the psycho and that they are vigilant and monitoring the situation. -IANS

Upgrade to existing 112; now you can send WhatsApp message in case of emergency

The newly appointed police commissioner of the city B Dayananda has implemented a system to help people who are in distress immediately whereby they can send a WhatsApp message to the police in emergency situations.

This is an upgrade to existing 112, now citizens can now avail 122 service on WhatsApp number 94808 01000.

"People can now send photos and location on WhatsApp and whatever message we receive, we will check if it needs any assistance, and it will be pushed for 112. Once all the details are obtained they will get the response, as they would do in any voice call," Dayananda told BM.

He added that this initiative has nothing to do with increasing crime rates in the city, and claimed that the crime rates have in fact decreased in recent months.

"This is just for convenience and to maintain multiple channels of communication so that people can avail of whatever service they are comfortable with," he added.

He said that police are expecting that many fraudsters would also try to message on the number but the police are trained to weed out such messages.

Dayananda said that earlier there was a WhatsApp number but it was not linked to 112, which affected its efficiency. But now the new number has been linked to the emergency number and hence police are expecting success of the new launch.

When asked about the low workforce in the department and the lack of people to monitor these services, Dayananda said that they are in conversation with the government. "Staff shortage is a problem that the police department has been facing for a while, and we are in talks with the government to recruit more people wherever it is required and the government has given us a positive response," he said.

Recently, the Commissioner and senior officials were briefed about the functioning of the Hoysala vehicle by patrolling in the city. As a result of the patrolling, the step has been taken to improve 112 service.

'Unable to fight it anymore'

A Dalit employee in a Bengaluru-based corporate firm ended his life, alleging harassment at his workplace, after uploading a 7-minute video narrating his woes and urging the authorities to initiate action and get the system streamlined on social media.

In the video, which has gone viral, the employee, identified as 35-year-old Vivek Raj from Kaptanganj in Uttar Pradesh, held the Life Style International Private Ltd located in Yamaluru responsible for his death.

The incident took place on June 3. Three employees of Life Style International have been named as the accused persons in the case. It has been alleged that the accused humiliated him for being Dalit and his complaint in this regard fell on deaf ears.

Vivek Raj, in the video, stated: "For what I am going to do, I am sorry and proud as well. Fighting the system might be government, might it be private, there is a difficulty. Coming from a particular background, fighting the battle from childhood. Studying hard, working hard, you change, you evolve and get better as a human being. You will try to be kind to the world but the world won't be kind to you..."

In its reaction, Lifestyle International Pvt Ltd said: "We are deeply saddened to hear of the demise of our former employee. Our thoughts and prayers are with his friends and family during this most difficult time. "Vivek had raised a complaint through our internal process, and a thorough internal investigation was conducted in accordance with company policies, outcomes were shared with him, and the appropriate actions were taken..."

The Whitefield police have registered a case for abetment to suicide. Hours before killing himself, the victim had lodged a police complaint against his colleagues. –IANS

All work and no pay? No extra grant to transport corporations

Govt says wages-fuel expenditure would have to be borne from corporations' internal resources

KAUSHIK JN

The Karnataka Finance Department has said that it would not be providing any additional grants for wages-fuel expenditure by the four road transport corporations (RTCs). Expenditure arising out of wage revision of employees should be borne from the corporations' internal resources and henceforth, additional grant for payment of wages-fuel expenditure would not be permitted, it said. The move has come as a disappointment to the employees of RTCs. All the four corporations (KSRTC, BMTC, NWKRTC, and KKRTC) have a total workforce of 1.07 lakh.

Shaheen Shasa, a member of the Bengaluru Bus Prayanikara Vedike (BBPV), noted that the pay revision for employees that was pending since January 2020 was only recently issued by the previous regime. After a call for strike was put out, much discussion was held between employee unions and the management of corporations, leading to then Chief Minister Basavaraj Bommai making an announcement about increasing the basic salary of employees of the RTCs by 15%. "The disaster strikes of '20, '21 are not forgotten. Resolving the salary issue is a Congress manifesto promise too," she said. BBPV is of the opinion that salary revision is the right of the staff. However, public transport corporations cannot fund these fully from revenues and hence, the government must provide the gap funding required for operational expenses including salary revisions.

> "Some leaders said that if they came to power, they would solve all the problems of the RTCs and provide equal pay for equal work but now look at what the government is doing

Vinay Sreenivasa, another member, took to Twitter and said that the previous government has weakened RTCs. He added that while the Shakti scheme will help revive them, they will still require additional assistance. "This support is not a subsidy. It's an investment. When the metro gets thousands of crores, why not bus-based RTCs?" he said.

"They have enabled women to travel freely in the state but when it comes to paying the employees of the transport corporations, they have said that the salary should be paid from internal resources of the corporation and no additional grants should be given for fuel. Before the elections, many leaders of the Congress party, who are now also ministers, spoke about the transport organisations with great concern for the transport workers," said Anand Kodiyela, who is the joint secretary of Karnataka Rajya Raste Sarige Naukarara Okkutta (RTC employees union). "Some leaders said if they came to power, they would solve all the problems of the RTCs and provide equal pay for equal work but now look at what the government is doing," he said.

Record ridership

Conductors of RTCs have noticed that ridership of men has also increased since the implementation of the Shakti scheme. Data has also backed this claim, with the daily total ridership increasing to a 1.16 crore on Tuesday, the third day of the scheme. Of the 1.16 crore, 51.52 lakh were women. According to estimates of the transport department, over 41.8 lakh women were to avail the scheme on a daily basis.

Govt to repeal anti-conversion law

Edu dept to remove 'controversial' lessons

Bangalore Mirror Bureau

The Siddaramaiah government announced on Thursday its plans to amend the Anti-Conversion Law and revise textbooks. The announcements were made after the cabinet meeting held at Vidhana Soudha.

State Law and Parliamentary Affairs Minister HK Patil stated that the Cabinet has decided to amend the Anti-Conversion Law and drop all the aspects introduced by the previous BJP government. Patil further mentioned that the act will be taken up for amendment in the Assembly session scheduled for July.

The BJP had imposed stringent conditions on religious conversions and prescribed severe punishments for the offence.

Textbook approach

The Karnataka Cabinet approved the revision of Kannada and Social Science textbooks for classes 6 to 10 in the state for the current academic year. The revisions involve removing chapters on RSS founder KB Hedgewar and Hindutva ideologue VD Savarkar, among others.

The Cabinet also consented to adding chapters on social reformer and educator Savitribai Phule, Nehru's letters to Indira Gandhi, and poetry on Ambedkar. The changes made by the previous BJP government will also be undone.

Primary and Secondary Education Minister Madhu Bangarappa noted that since the textbooks had already been distributed to students before the new government took office, making it impractical to withdraw and reprint new textbooks, supplementary books will be provided instead.

'Cooperate with police or will shut you down'

Court slams Facebook for allegedly being non-cooperative over probe into case of Indian imprisoned in Saudi Arabia

The Karnataka High Court on Wednesday warned Facebook that it would consider issuing an order to close down the social media giant's activities in India following its alleged non-cooperation with the state police over investigation of the case of an imprisoned Indian citizen in Saudi Arabia.

A bench of Justice Krishna S Dixit gave the warning while taking up a petition submitted by Kavitha, a resident of Bikarnakatte near Mangaluru in Dakshina Kannada district.

"The complete report with required information should be submitted in a week before the court," the bench directed Facebook.

It also sad that the Central government should give information on what action has ibeen initiated in the case of arrest of an Indian citizen in a false case. Mangaluru police also will have to take up proper investigation and submit a report, the court said, adjourning the hearing to June 22.

Kavitha, in her plea, said that her husband Shailesh Kumar, 52 worked with a company in Saudi Arabia for 25 years, while she lived at her native place with their children.

She said that he had put up a message on Facebook in support of the Citizenship Amendment Act (CAA) and National Register of Citizens (NRC) in 2019 but unknown people opened a fake Facebook account in his name, and posted objectionable posts against the King of Saudi Arabia and Islam. As soon as it came to his knowledge, Kumar had informed the family and Kavitha had lodged a police complaint in Mangaluru in this regard. However, Saudi police had arrested Shailesh Kumar and put him in prison.

The Mangaluru police taking up the investigation had written a letter to Facebook and sought information on the opening of the fake Facebook account. But, Facebook had not responded to the police. In 2021, petitioner had approached the High Court questioning delay in the investigation.

Kavitha had also written a letter to the Central government to get her husband released from the prison.

'Frivolous': Complaint against Samsung India quashed

The High Court on Thursday quashed a criminal complaint lodged against South Korean MNC Samsung company by the state Legal Metrology Department on packaging rules, terming it "frivolous".

A bench, headed by Justice Sachin Shankar Magdum, pronounced its order while hearing the petition by Samsung India Electronics Private Ltd seeking quashing of the case.

It opined that the contents of the complaint are totally trivial and unfortunate, and even it the allegations are accepted, it won't constitute an offence. As per the rules under the Legal Metrology Act's Sections 52 and 10, the sections will only apply to the measurements and not to the maximum retail price (MRP). The charge of violation of Section 11 has been sidelined in this background, the bench stated.

The charges in the complaint apply to retail packages and not the wholesale bulk packages.

When the complaint is verified, it appears clearly that the act of lodging the complaint itself is incorrect and tainted with malafide, the court said, adding that the petitioner has also not made specific allegations against the company.

The legal metrology laws are defined wrongly and a complaint has been lodged and hence it is quashed, the bench said.

The officials of the Legal Metrology department during their inspection at the ABM TeleMobiles India Ltd, the distributors of Samsung mobiles, found that Rs 14,000 is mentioned as the MRP of Samsung Galaxy Tab 4 was not in conformity with the rule 4 (2) of the Legal Metrology (Numeration) Rules.

junction would reduce the commute time at the junction to a great extent.

Recently, even the traffic police had said that they would carry out a pilot project to make Iblur a signal free corridor, however, that was not put as a permanent solution. But commuters insist that although the road widening might help to an extent, it is important for the Iblur corridor to become signal free after all.

Vishnu Prasad said, "The Iblur junction upgrade and junction upgrades on Sarjapur Road need to be expedited to give some relief to commuters. As of now, it seems we are expected to wait for the metro to even get better signal free corridors and junctions."

Regular commuters pointed out that the road has been widened for only over 50-100 metres at the junction and no further widening across Sarjapur Road has been taken up. In the past two days, commuters have seen an easing of traffic movement. However, they added that it is important for lane discipline to be followed and for the traffic police to man the junction.

Ankit Goyal, a regular commuter, said, "The road is widened at Iblur signal, but now all lanes are blocked by vehicles that want to take a right to ORR. Widening has not addressed the issue for vehicles that want to go straight towards HSR. As the road has been widened, people who have to go to the right side are covering the entire lane from left to right. For people travelling to HSR Layout, despite the signal being open they have to wait until the right turn signal is green as the vehicles have blocked the road."

He added the need of the hour is to add a divider to separate the lane for commuters who want to go straight and for the rest to go right. "On Wednesday, I had to commute via Iblur junction to HSR layout, but the entire road was blocked by people taking the right to go to ORR Ecospace Road. I had to wait for a long time. The commuters should follow lane discipline and it is also necessary to have traffic police stationed at the junction," he pointed out.

Other residents of the area suggested that a footpath should be done up properly from Trinity Woods-Iblur foot overbridge for the safety of the pedestrians. Other suggestions include the construction of a bus shelter at the Iblur junction.

Heavy drinking linked to lower muscle mass

Heavy drinking has long been associated with various health problems, including cirrhosis of the liver, cancer, and heart disease. But our latest study has found that these aren't the only issues that excess drinking can cause. We found that heavy drinkers had lower levels of muscle mass than those who didn't drink, or drank moderately.

To conduct our study, we included data from nearly 200,000 people aged between 37 and 73, looking at their average alcohol consumption and their muscle mass.

We made adjustments for any factors that may affect the results of our analysis, such as a person's physical activity levels, how much protein they ate and whether they smoked.

Our analysis looked at men and women separately because there are differences in body composition between the sexes.

We used a statistical model that would illustrate the way muscle mass differed according to the amount of alcohol people drank. Because larger people have more muscle, we scaled muscle for body size.

Overall, people had lower amounts of muscle the more that they drank. This effect happened after about one unit of alcohol a day for men (just under a small glass of wine) and just under two units for women (the equivalent of a pint of lager).

The men and women who were among the heaviest drinkers – consuming around 20 units a day, the equivalent of two bottles of wine or ten pints of beer – had 4 per cent-5 per cent less muscle than those who did not drink at all. Comparing this difference with the average yearly loss of muscle (around 0.5 per cent), our findings may have important implications when it comes to our health as we age.

Muscle loss and health

Our study can't conclude that alcohol is directly causing muscle loss, because we measured both alcohol consumption and muscle mass at the same time. In the same study, we also tracked changes in people's muscle mass over time, compared to their alcohol consumption.

This could give a better idea of whether this relationship was cause and effect. But this data was for a much smaller group and we didn't find any associations.

We also don't know what the results would be in people aged in their 70s and older, as we had very few people of this age in our study.

It's possible that the effects of heavy alcohol drinking could be more extreme in older people because alcohol could interact with the other factors that lead to greater muscle loss in old age, such as changes in body composition or increases in inflammation.

Our study isn't the first to show that high alcohol intake can affect muscle mass. But it is one of the first to investigate a large population of both men and women with a wide variation in alcohol consumption.

It will be important for future studies to investigate how alcohol affects muscle in people aged 75 and older and in people from different ethnic backgrounds, as our study didn't look at these groups.

Each of us begins losing muscle mass and function slowly, starting in our 30s. While we might not notice this loss much at first, as we get older the rate at which we lose muscle mass and strength increases – leading to a condition known as sarcopenia.

This muscle loss can give way to other health problems, such as lower bone density, fractures, falls, frailty and even greater risk of early death. Sarcopenia is also a risk for type 2 diabetes.

But it's possible to prevent some of this muscle loss through exercise and eating a diet with enough protein. Our findings suggest that if you are in your 50s and 60s, avoiding excess alcohol consumption may also help you to avoid losing too much muscle mass as you get older.

So if you're someone who drinks a bottle of wine, or four to five pints a night and you are concerned about your muscle health, then you might want to reduce how much you drink. Even if you're a moderate drinker, you might like to think about this.

Substituting some of your alcoholic drinks with soft drinks might be one way to help you cut down.

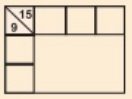
The numbers in the grey squares refer to the sums of the digits that you must fill into the empty spaces directly below or to the right of the grey square containing the number. For instance, in the given example, the 3 boxes horizontally next to 15 must contain 3 digits that add up to 15, whereas for 9, it is the 2 boxes placed vertically under it that must add up to 9. No zeros are used here, only the digits 1 through 9.



Note: A digit cannot appear more than once in any particular digit combination. For instance, in the example, we cannot have the combination of 4+7+4 for 15.

Loop

Rules

» Connect adjacent dots with vertical or horizontal lines, creating a single loop (Fig A). » Crossovers or branches are not allowed (As shown by dotted lines in Fig B). » Numbers in the puzzle indicate the number of lines that should surround it, while empty cells may be surrounded by any number of lines. » You can't draw lines around zeros. » Each puzzle has just one unique solution.

How to begin:

Example (Fig A) – Begin with the zero next to 3. Since no lines can be drawn around zero, mark crosses around it, as shown. Now there is a cross in one space around 3. So we know the three lines of 3 can only be drawn in the remaining three spaces. Next, these lines can only be extended in one direction each. Continue, using the same logic.

Hints: Keep eliminating possibilities by marking crosses in spaces between dots where a line isn't possible, i.e., if you have already completed required lines or where a line extension may create a branch or cause a dead-end (Fig B)

Tamannaah says one should marry only when completely ready

After months of speculaion, Tamannaah Bhatia finally made her relationship with Vijay Varma official by calling him 'her happy place'. Now, the actor, currently being seen in the web series Jee Karda, has opened up on marriage, saying that it is a 'big responsibility'.

In a chat with a leading news portal, the actor said that marriage is a big responsibility and takes a lot of work, just like having a dog, plants and kids.

Saying that one should not get married just because others are doing it, she added that we should rather wait it out until we feel completely ready.

Earlier, Tamannaah opened up on Vijay as someone she really looks up to and said that they bonded very organically. She added that he's someone who really came to her with all his guards down and so it became easy for her to put her guards down. The actress added that the problem with high-achieving women is that they feel they have to always work hard for everything. She was under the impression that you get something only if you work hard. But here was something which was so simple and she didn't have to walk on egg shells to just be yourself.

Tamannaah and Vijay will be seen together in 'Lust Stories 2'. Their segment is directed by Sujoy Ghosh. Earlier, Vijay had taken to Twitter and re-shared a tweet from a fan which read: "I am hoping Lust Stories main you are not creeping us out yet again."

Replying to the tweet, he wrote: "I'm playing the nicest guy in lust stories." -ETimes

New normal

Samantha Ruth Prabhu took to her IG handle on Thursday to pen a long note on the year gone by, saying that it has been a tough battle after being diagnosed with autoimmune disease Myositis. Samantha is now a huge name in Bollywood as well, thanks to her stint in the web series The Family Man, directed by Raj & DK.

Now, the duo are working with her again in the Indian version of spy series Citadel, co-starring Varun Dhawan. In Serbia for the shoot of the same, Samantha penned a long note today reflecting on the year gone by, that included a health scare after being diagnosed from Myositis.

Sharing some postcards from Serbia, Samantha wrote, "It's been one year since the diagnosis. A year of forced new normal. Many battles with my body... no salt, sugar or grains with a cocktail of meds for main course, forced shutdowns and forced restarts. A year of seeking meaning, reflection and introspection. Of professional failures too... to make things interesting. A year of prayers and poojas... not praying for blessings and gifts... but praying to just find strength and peace." -ETimes

Focus on movies

Former minister BC Patil who faced defeat in State Assembly elections from Hirekerur has decided to focus not only in acting but also in producing quality movies with a good plot. Prior to acting, Patil was a police inspector working in Bengaluru. Later his passion for movies made him quit the job.

"I want to encourage newcomers, be it directors or actors through our home banner Kaurava Production House. My latest Kannada movie Garadi, directed by Yogaraj Bhat, is ready for release shortly," said Patil. A song – Hodirele Halagi – from Garadi was released on Wednesday.

Doctor can act too

Among the several doctors who have entered Sandalwood as actors, directors, and producers, Dr PVR Leela Mohan from HSR Layout is the latest.

Dr Mohan is anxiously waiting for the release of Kannada movie Road King in which he plays an important role. Dr Mohan debuted in Sandalwood with the Gadiyara that was released in 2020. He has also acted in movies such as Ugravathara, Naayi Ide Yechcharike, and Putani Pantarugalu, and Telugu movie Kalyanamasthu.

Road King is scheduled for release on June 23. "Movies have been my passion since childhood. I acted in the Kannada tele serial Baduku. I also launched the Laughing Peacock Productions banner to bankroll short movies and also made a few music albums," said Dr Mohan.
